

Daily Threat Bulletin

16 April 2026

Vulnerabilities

Critical Nginx UI auth bypass flaw now actively exploited in the wild

BleepingComputer - 15 April 2026 19:35

A critical vulnerability in Nginx UI with Model Context Protocol (MCP) support is now being exploited in the wild for full server takeover without authentication.

April Patch Tuesday Fixes Critical Flaws Across SAP, Adobe, Microsoft, Fortinet, and More

The Hacker News - 15 April 2026 19:07

A number of critical vulnerabilities impacting products from Adobe, Fortinet, Microsoft, and SAP have taken center stage in April's Patch Tuesday releases.

Two Vulnerabilities Patched in Ivanti Neurons for ITSM

SecurityWeek - 15 April 2026 12:38

The flaws could allow a remote attacker to maintain access after their account has been disabled and to access information from other user sessions.

PHP Composer flaws enable remote command execution via Perforce VCS

Security Affairs - 15 April 2026 09:19

Two high-severity vulnerabilities in PHP Composer could allow attackers to execute arbitrary commands. PHP Composer is a dependency manager for PHP that helps developers install and manage libraries their projects need.

Threat actors and malware

WordPress plugin suite hacked to push malware to thousands of sites

BleepingComputer - 15 April 2026 17:33

More than 30 WordPress plugins in the EssentialPlugin package have been compromised with malicious code that allows unauthorized access to websites running them.

Scottish
Cyber Coordination
Centre

Patch these critical Fortinet sandbox bugs that let attackers bypass login, run commands over HTTP

The Register - 15 April 2026 18:52

No reports of active exploitation (yet) Watch out for more Fortinet vulns! Two critical bugs in Fortinet's sandbox could allow unauthenticated attackers to bypass authentication or execute unauthorized code on vulnerable systems.

n8n Webhooks Abused Since October 2025 to Deliver Malware via Phishing Emails

The Hacker News - 15 April 2026 23:39

Threat actors have been observed weaponizing n8n, a popular artificial intelligence (AI) workflow automation platform, to facilitate sophisticated phishing campaigns and deliver malicious payloads or fingerprint devices by sending automated emails.

UK incidents

Teen arrested in Northern Ireland over cyberattack on school network

The Record from Recorded Future News - 15 April 2026 20:45

A 16-year-old boy has been arrested in Northern Ireland after a cyberattack disrupted access to educational systems used by potentially hundreds of thousands of students.